ISSUES IN THE U.S. SENATE RACE

With three weeks remaining in the U.S. Senate campaign, no single issue dominates New Jersey voters' agenda. One-fifth feel crime is the most important issue in this Senate campaign, 14 percent say it is the problem of unemployment, 13 percent feel it is health care, and 9 percent say taxes.

The latest Star-Ledger/Eagleton Poll, conducted by telephone with 586 likely voters between October 16 and 20, also finds that majorities of voters have seen or heard both Lautenberg's (61%) and Haytaian's (59%) campaign advertisements.

The poll also finds that nearly three-quarters of New Jersey voters did not see or hear anything about last week's televised debate between the Senate candidates. Only 10 percent report actually viewing the debate.

MOST IMPORTANT CAMPAIGN ISSUES

No single problem dominates voter concerns in New Jersey's U.S. Senate race between Republican challenger Garabed "Chuck" Haytaian and Democratic incumbent Frank Lautenberg. The specific issue mentioned by the largest number of voters -- 20 percent -- is crime, with another 2 percent singling out the drug problem. In a survey conducted 4 months ago, 17 percent said crime was the most important issue the next Senator will have to face.

In terms of economic issues, the problem of unemployment and jobs creation is cited by 14 percent of voters as most important in this election, down 5 points from June. Taxes are named as most important by 9 percent of voters, and another 11 percent cite other economic problems such as inflation, the cost of living and the budget deficit.

The health care issue is most important to 13 percent of New Jersey voters, which represents a 6 point decline since June.

Associate Poll Director Ken Dautrich commented, "Unlike most recent elections in New Jersey, no one issue dominates voter concerns. From 1990 through 1993, economic concerns about jobs and taxes occupied voter attention and allowed Bill Clinton and Christie Whitman to wage successful campaigns. This year no issue or set of issues dominates the voters' agenda."

Overall, 39 percent of voters say that Lautenberg would do a better job of handling the most important issue identified by voters, compared to 26 percent who say that Haytaian would do better. These figures represent a 6 point gain for Haytaian and a 2 point gain for Lautenberg since June.

POLITICAL COMMERCIALS

Majorities of voters are paying attention to both candidates' advertising in this Senate campaign. Sixty-one percent say they have seen or heard a Lautenberg television or radio advertisement, and 59 percent have seen or heard a Haytaian ad.

Those exposed to the candidate's advertising are generally not reacting favorably toward it. For example, among those who have seen Haytaian's commercials, 39 percent say the ads made them less likely to support the Republican while 28 percent say it made them more likely to support him. Among those exposed to Lautenbergs ads, 38 percent say the ads made them less supportive of the incumbent while 34 percent became more supportive.

THE DEBATE

Ten percent of voters report having had watched the October 15 debate between Haytaian and Lautenberg, and another 18 percent read or heard news stories about the debate. The remaining 72 percent did not read or hear anything about the first televised debate between the Senate candidates.

Among voters who at least read or heard about the debate, more than half (52%) do not feel there was a winner. About the same number of voters feel Haytaian (25%) got the better of the debates as those who feel Lautenberg (24%) won.

Among voters who at least read or heard about the debate, 29 percent say their impression of Haytaian became more favorable while 26 percent say their impression of the Republican became less favorable. Twenty-five percent say their impression of Lautenberg became more favorable from the debate while 29 percent say the incumbent's performance made their impression of him less favorable.

BACKGROUND MEMO — RELEASE SL/EP50-2 (EP100-2), MONDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1994

The latest Star-Ledger/Eagleton Poll was conducted between October 16 and October 20, 1994, when a random sample of 801 New Jerseyans, 18 years and older, was interviewed by telephone. Figures based on this sample size are subject to a sampling error of about ± 3.5 percent at a 95 percent confidence interval.

Figures are also reported for those considered most likely to actually vote in the November election. This subset, identified as LIKELY VOTERS in this background memo, contains 586 respondents. The sampling error for this subset is about ± 4.0 percent. Unless otherwise indicated all figures refer to this group of voters. Likely voters are people who say that they are registered to vote and will "definitely" or "probably" vote on Election Day.

Sampling error is the probable difference in results between interviewing everyone in the population versus a scientific sample taken from that population. Sampling error does not take into account other possible sources of error inherent in any study of public opinion. The questions and figures referred to in this release are presented below. The location of each question on the actual questionnaire is in brackets.

"What do you think is the most important problem facing the country that whoever is elected Senator will have to face?" [Q.17A]
